

FINAL EXAMINATION WEEK ACTIVITIES

The period of time set aside each semester for final examination provides the opportunity for the instructor to plan and conduct an activity relevant to the course and which will contribute to the final assessment of the student's achievement of the course objectives.

The final examination period is the period set aside for a two-hour written examination. It is recognized that a planned activity other than a written examination may be appropriate as a culminating learning experience and contribute to the ability of the instructor to evaluate the student's achievement of the course objectives.
